"The Power and the Potential of the Human Animal Relationship"

Dr. Michelle Lem co-founded Community Veterinary Outreach guided by the belief that the best way to help animals is to help people. She will share her insights on the potential of veterinarians and veterinary care to influence the health and welfare of marginalized people who are pet owners. Dr. Lem is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College (OVC). She returned to OVC to pursue graduate studies in research in the Department of Population Health, studying the effects of pet ownership on street-involved youth.
